

Private codes fail with new partners

Cross-play pairs one seed's sender with another seed's receiver. A large loss means the protocol works in self-play but is not portable across independently trained agents.

