

Messages mainly move the decision boundary

Curves average over seeds and communication designs. The learned policies join less often as regimes become harder; messages sharpen that response around the threshold.

